The official scorer asked Manager McAleer five minutes before the opening of the morning game who was going to pitch.
McAleer asked for a moment's time while he watched the antics of his stable of twirlers.

The change worked well. Reidy pitched twirlers.

The first man McAleer scanned was "Willie." He was warming up with Sugden.

McAleer soon replied:

"You can announce that the "Kerry Patch Teuton" will do the twirling, and you might as well tell the folks in the stands that we are going to win."

McAleer proved to be a prophet. His prediction went through, and when Wallace tagged second in the ninth inning ahead of Gessler for the twenty-seventh put-out against the Detroit team, the score stood 2 to 1 in favor of the Browns.

Hem to the slaughter in masterly fashion. Seven hits, three of which were secured by Jimmy Barrett, were all the batting the Detroits could do.

"Wild Bill" Donovan, Detroit's star pitcher, opposed him. Barring Donovan's desfre to live up to his reputation as the "great untamed," he pitched a fast game.

On two occasions he mistook the screen for McGuire's catching mitt, and shot the ball against the wire with enough speed to tear down a fence.

He also walked two men, and these misplays, coupled with some timely and cohesive hitting, resulted in the complete taming of Donovan.

Sudhoff pitched in masteriy fashion, holding the "Tigers" down to nine scattered hits and one run.

He had the "Wolverines" faded ful through the game. He began doing things to them in the first inning, when, with a Detroit player on second and another on third, and only one out, he fanned the hard-hitting Elberfeld and the lengthy Mr. Carr.

Carr.

In the second inning the "Tigers" scored their lone tally. After that Sudhoff let them down without a run.

Deering, Sudhoff's opponent, was also in fine form, and, barring his strong inclinations to ride in the afreship at critical stages, pitched a very pretty game.

In the eight inning the Browns, with Jesse Burkett as chief aeronaut, helped in the assension, and when Deering came back to earth the locals had two runs chalked up in their favor.

For seven immings Deering applied the kalsomine, and it looked to be all over with the Browns.

In the eight inning Deering experienced in the eight inning provent of the two contests. Billy Priel proved conclusively that he is worthy of his hire. Not only did he do some swell fielding stunts, but his two smashing singles drove runners in ahead of them and he managed to chase across the pan.

Burkett's fielding was the feature of the game. His capture of Crawford's terrific line drive in the sixth inning was the piece de resistance of the contest.

Crawford has a penchang for home-run, hitting, and this hankering has won the "Kansas Barber" the sobriquet of "home-run sam". Reidy is not acquainted with Crawford's weakness, and dished him up a nice floater, waist high.
